Puerto Rico Pressing Search For Fanatics

SAN JUAN (AP)—Pushing its drive against political trouble makers, the Puerto Rican government today sought the "Big Four" of the island's Communist party and two Nationalist leaders.

Sweeping police raids over the weekend netted 40 Nationalist party leaders and six Communists. All were jailed as possible subversives. The roundup was launched after last Monday's attack by Nationalists in the U. S. House of Representatives.

The Reds were captured without violence in a second round of arrests yesterday. This was in contrast to the gunfire and tear gas attack when Nationalist chief Pedro Albizu Campos and five of his aides were routed out of his apartment Saturday.

The four Communists being sought are Juan Santos Rivera, the party president, who reported by Moscow training; Juan Saez Corales, a local labor union organizer; Cesar Andreu Iglesias, former party president; and Pablo Garcia Rodriguez, a Harvard-graduate lawyer.

In custody are Saez, wife of Saez Corales; Jane Speed Andreu, 43, of Berkeley, Calif.; Andreu's wife; Mariano Arroyo Zependelf, Ramon Mirabal, Cris-tino Perez and Felix Ojeda.

Atty. Gen. Jose Trias said both the alleged Communists and Nationalists, jailed on $25,000 bail each, are being charged with violating a local anti-subversive law.

Authorities believe the Puerto Rican Communist party has less than 100 members but fear that it is tied in with the Nationalist faction, which has several hundred followers. Both parties demand complete independence for Puerto Rico, and reportedly the Reds furnished some of the arms for the 1950 Nationalist revolt in which 50 persons were killed.

Communist leaders have denied arms aid to the rebels. They also issued a newspaper statement last week disclaiming any connection with the Washington shooting.

The extreme Nationalists have gained little legislative support in Puerto Rico. The lower house recently rejected 42-14 a resolution calling for complete independence instead of the present commonwealth status. The Senate voted 27-5 against a similar resolution.

Albizu Campos, in a prison hospital, was said by officials to have recovered from the effects of the tear gas that was used in arresting the fiery 62-year-old radical Saturday.

He still was claiming, however, that the United States is attacking him with cosmic rays.

This has been a chronic complaint. Because of such hallucinations, medical authorities declared him mentally ill in 1951.

In prison at the time for leading the 1950 revolt, he was transferred to a hospital. Later he was pardoned from his 54-year sentence because of his condition.

French Order Emergency Alert After Rebel Raids

Extra Meeting Set Tuesday On Fire Needs

Parking Problems May Also Receive More Attention

City Council Tuesday night is expected to resume its study of ways and means to give Circleville better fire protection, following through on plans to hold an extra huddle for that particular purpose and any other important details.

The municipal lawmakers, at their last regular meeting, also indicated some of the overtime discussion may be centered on the city's parking problems. Meanwhile, final approval was expected in the near future on steps to straighten out the city ordinance books.

Codification firm representatives last week outlined how the city could have its laws overhauled and put in up-to-date ready-reference order. Apparently only formalities remain to be handled before the work can begin.

Regardless of how far the talk ranges at the extra meeting, it seemed certain the spotlight would be on the fire protection planning. Urgent need for a more modern fire setup in Circleville was emphasized by the emergency that re-

Dem Senators Say Economic Issues Outweigh McCarthy

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—On the heels of Adlai E. Stevenson's criticism of President Eisenhower for failing to put the brakes on Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), two Democratic senators today agreed that economic issues should outweigh McCarthy's activities in the party's 1954 campaign strategy.

In a speech creating the general impression here he is actively in the field for the 1956 Democratic presidential nomination, Stevenson said Eisenhower could stop what the former Illinois governor called a campaign by McCarthy to "sow the dragon's teeth of slander and dissension" across the nation.

Although he said he agreed generally with that conclusion, Sen. Magnuson (D-Wash.) said he is not too sure of either the timing or the importance that Stevenson gave to McCarthy and his Communist-in-government charges. He was joined by Sen. Murray (D-Mont.). Magnuson said:

"Come next fall, when control of congress is decided at the polls, I think the fiscal policies the Republicans have put into effect are going to be the most important issue."

Stevenson's charges in a speech here Saturday night that McCarthy's investigation threatened a "malignant and fatal totalitarianism" and that out of two million federal employees "only one alleged active Communist has been found" brought a hot reply from McCarthy. He asserted:

"It was a very clever political talk designed to cloud the issues." McCarthy said he wanted equal time on national radio and television networks to reply.

In New York, the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System said they have received no such request from McCarthy yet.

Stevenson's crackling speech here convinced a large segment of attending Democrats that he is remaining in the active field of those available for the party nomination in 1956.

Magnuson, a staunch supporter of Stevenson in the 1952 campaign, said he believes the country is sliding into a business recession and the Democrats ought to blow every warning horn they are able to sound.

Backing this up, Murray said he also feels the Democrats should stress economic issues and not pay so much attention to McCarthy and his charges.

"I agree with Stevenson that we cannot afford to have the terrible division among the American people that the Republican leaders seem to be encouraging McCarthy to create," the Montana senator said.

"But there are even more important things and one of the most important is to do something now about our sinking economy."

"The voter whose pay check is missing or cut to the point where he can't sustain his family is going to be a lot more interested in that than all this talk about Communists in government."

Citing the controversy between Eisenhower and McCarthy over the latter's charges that the Army had "coddled" Communists, Stevenson said that if the President had cracked down on the Wisconsin (Continued on Page Two)

Red Commando Thrust Hurlled At 2nd Airport

Commie-Led Forces Dislike Presence Of American Technicians

HAIPHONG, Indochina (AP)—French military authorities enforced a state of emergency in this vital seaport today following a Vietminh commando raid on a nearby landing field where American technicians service U. S.-supplied transport planes for the French war against the Communist-led rebels.

Reports circulated that the Vietminh had declared they planned to attack every area where American personnel work. The Vietminh radio recently accused the U. S. of intervening in the Indochinese war.

None of the 44 U. S. Air Force personnel stationed at the field, Catbi, three miles from Haiphong, was on the airfield when the commandos attacked yesterday.

Another 105 American technicians work at Doson Airstrip, 12 miles southeast of Haiphong. The French set up prohibited zones around both fields, barring from the areas all civilians, except those with special authorization.

The rest of the 252 Americans aiding the French in maintaining the planes are stationed at Tourane, on the central Indochinese coast.

THE FRENCH announced the seizure of 74 men suspected of aiding the Vietminh in the Catbi raid. The military said five of the raiders were killed, "several" taken prisoner and three high explosive charges had been seized.

Patrols at the two airfields were reinforced following the attack. Patrols at all other landing strips in north Indochina were alerted today to guard against further Vietminh raids.

Before the arrival of the Americans, Vietminh commandos raided the Doson field about a month ago, damaging planes and blowing up gasoline storage depots.

Local Humane Officer 'Fed Up,' Starts Drive On Roaming Dogs

"Fed up" with dog owners who let their pets run loose in Circleville, Pickaway County Humane Officer Ralph Wallace declared Monday "the warning stage is over and we're out to make people obey the law."

He drew attention to the city's ordinance against the owners or custodians of dogs found at large in the community. City Council passed the measure late last Summer, and Wallace said "by now everybody in town has had a chance to know about it."

The ordinance provides a special crackdown on stray dogs found in the city between March 1 and Oct. 1. It was designed to cover this period with lawns and gardens especially in mind.

"I know the owners of a lot of the dogs seen roaming around the city," Wallace said, "and I don't want them to say, after this article appears in the paper, that they don't know about the law. After all, they received plenty of warning about the ordinance last Summer."

"FROM NOW ON, the strays are going to be picked up—sometimes I get about 35 dogs a week as it is—and the owners or those who are supposed to be in charge are going to have to pay the penalty. The strays aren't the ordinary homeless dogs, either."

"They are dogs owned by people in the city, and most of the time I know who owns them."

Wallace said the stray dog nuisance has been reported from almost every section of the city, but he mentioned in particular the dogs in the vicinity of High and Scioto streets.

"Sometimes, down around there," he said, "I see from five to a dozen of them, within a space of three or four blocks!"

The city ordinance in part provides that:

"Whoever being the owner of any dog, or whoever being in charge of any dog, who shall knowingly permit the dog to run at large, unaccompanied by the master or owner, or person in charge thereof, from March 1 of any year until Oct. 1 of any year, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

Fines under the ordinance can range from three to 10 dollars.

Bandit Kills 2 Men In Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP)—From a deathbed description, police today hunted for a bandit who shot and killed two men in a tavern in suburban St. Bernard yesterday.

The victims were Charles Anderson, 68, a bartender, and Tim Smith, about 40, who was sitting at the bar.

Anderson, shot in the abdomen after he handed the holdup man $111.75 in a cigar box, lived long enough to give police a description of his assailant.

House Members Jest On Shooting

WASHINGTON (AP)—House members today were able to poke some fun at themselves a week after they were targets of a wild fusillade from the pistols of four Puerto Rican fanatics.

Jests stemmed from the many reports of people who shared in capturing the attackers. Rep. Clarence J. Brown (R-Ohio) offered a make-believe award to any member who could prove he did not take part in the capture.

Navy Secretary High On List To Get No. 2 Defense Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—The name of Secretary of the Navy Robert Anderson rode high today in speculation about the administration's choice of a successor for Roger B. Kyes in the No. 2 defense job.

The White House and Pentagon announced over the weekend Kyes will leave the deputy secretaryship where he has served with Secretary of Defense Wilson since the outset of the Eisenhower Administration.

Kyes emphasized that his resignation "has absolutely nothing to do" with the recent clash between Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens and Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Pentagon sources indicated the decision on a new deputy secretary already was made and that announcement of his identity could be expected shortly.

Kyes and his former General Motors Corp. colleague, Wilson, both said the deputy secretary took the job with the understanding he would remain for only a year. The assumption here is that Kyes will return to some GM position.

WHILE ANDERSON'S name was mentioned prominently in guesses today, it actually was only one of several names of men, both in and Fleet — The President asks the Senate to confirm the promotion of Vice Ad. John H. Cassady to admiral, disclosing Cassady will command all U. S. naval forces in the eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean.

Labor — The House Labor Committee rejects 18 - 6 an effort to knock union shop provisions out of the Taft-Hartley law. The proposal would have had the effect of making illegal those work contracts calling for a union shop under which a worker is required to join a union within a specified time after he is hired.

Statehood — Senate Democrats weigh a campaign to tie Hawaiian and Alaskan statehood bills together. Republican leaders say they should be taken up separately.

Taft-Hartley — Senate Labor Committee members get down to work drafting amendments to the Taft-Hartley labor law. About the only thing they agree on: there's little chance of agreement.

Health — Deafness probably has received less attention than any other major medical problem in the nation, reports the House Commerce Committee in a summary of testimony received in lengthy hearings.

Those who talked of Anderson, a Texas businessman and rancher, figured it this way:

Wilson reportedly wanted to turn to the service secretariat in picking a man for the second most important job in the huge military establishment, rather than disturb his "team" arrangement of assistant defense secretaries.

In seniority and precedence, the Army secretary normally would rate first.

But while the White House and Pentagon have backed Stevens in the stormy row with McCarthy, they may feel they could not promote him to the deputy defense secretary post without risking repercussions.

Secretary of the Air Force Harold Talbott has been praised highly by Wilson for his reorganization of procurement programs and business administration, but on at least one occasion a comment attributed to him produced diplomatic ripples abroad.

Anderson, on the other hand, is described as having the same management sagacity as the other two service secretaries, but has succeeded in steering clear of embarrassments like those suffered by Stevens and Talbott.

Wallace Says He Is Neutral On Lake Plan

Ed Wallace, Pickaway County state representative, emphasized Monday that the latest proposal on the Memorial Lake project is a plan worked out by the Ohio State Wildlife Council, and not his "own idea."

"The new plan to clear the way for the lake project came from the wildlife council," he said. "It is not my own idea, and personally I don't know whether I like it or not. At any rate, I just wanted to place it before the public for the council, and then see what kind of reaction we get."

The state representative outlined the proposal to The Herald last Saturday after conferring with wildlife officials in Columbus.

Plans for a state-built lake and park area about three miles east of Circleville have been the center of controversy here for many years.

OUTSTANDING in the wildlife council's proposal is the suggestion to reduce the area of the lake itself from a contemplated 161 acres to about 50 acres. There would also be improvements to the dam and other reconstruction details to reduce the depth of the lake.

Wallace pointed out that if the council's plan is approved, work could start on the project this Summer. Then, he estimated, it would probably be opened to the public sometime next year.

"But the next step will be determined by the public's reaction," Wallace said, "and I've already asked people to let me know how they like it. If any individual or group wants to see the wildlife people or even the governor about it, I'll be glad to arrange to get them that opportunity in Columbus."

Wallace said he has heard no serious objections to the plan since it was first outlined Saturday.

Sportsmen League Opposes Fluoride

COLUMBUS (AP)—Fluoridation of public water supplies, reportedly beneficial to teeth, has been protested by the League of Ohio Sportsmen.

The group, closing its annual meeting here yesterday, adopted a resolution "vigorously opposing the introduction of fluoride or any other poisonous substance into public waters until it has been positively established that such deliberate medication can not be injurious."

The league also adopted a resolution calling for reduction of the minimum age for obtaining a fishing license from 18 to 16 years.

West Coast Dems To Back Jim Roosevelt

LOS ANGELES (AP)—James Roosevelt, accused by his estranged wife of being a philanderer, has won the endorsement of the California Democratic party as its candidate for Congress in the 26th District.

Prior to the endorsement by the 26th District Democratic Council, made by acclamation on the second ballot, the 46-year-old insurance executive said in a speech that he decided to enter the race to "obliterate" charges against him and "slurs against the ideals of my father."

The eldest son of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt had no specific reference to his wife's sensational separate maintenance suit, but he did say last night: "Personal questions are being used not only against me but against the Democratic party."

He added that the "questions" left him two choices, either to retire from public life, which he said would acknowledge "evidence of guilt and lack of courage," or "to come before the people and get elected to Congress and make a record which forever would be an answer to any smears the opposition would make."

Eleven candidates originally were in the running for the party's backing. But Roosevelt's only serious competition came from Jerry Pacht, son of a former Superior Court judge. Pacht trailed Roosevelt by 12 votes on the first ballot and finally lost by 14 on the second, when Roosevelt got 91, only one more than the 90 required for endorsement.

Strike Continues

NEW YORK (AP)—Dissatisfied longshoremen continued a "wildcat" strike on the New York waterfront today despite a previous prediction by their union leader that the work stoppage would end.

Taxes, Statehood For Hawaii Main Debates In Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—Party leaders tightened their lines today for Republican-Democratic tussles in Congress on two issues: taxes and statehood for Hawaii.

Senate Democrats have been summoned to their first caucus of the year tomorrow to discuss a campaign to tie an Alaska statehood amendment to the Hawaii bill which the Senate has been debating since last Thursday. The Republicans oppose the move.

Hawaii is generally conceded to be a Republican area with Alaska leaning toward the Democrats. Many a Southern legislator dislikes the idea of adding either to the union since it would further pare down Dixie voting power, especially on a "states rights" issue.

The House on Wednesday is scheduled to take up the first big tax bill of the year, a measure to cut many excise or sales taxes, and there may be some preliminary skirmishing preparatory to a bigger battle a week later over reducing personal income taxes.

GOP Labeled As Unchanged In Reaction

DELAWARE (AP)—The governor of Michigan told Ohio Wesleyan University students today "the Republican party of 1954 is the same old Republican party of conservatism and reaction."

Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams was the principal speaker at the university's "Democrat Recruitment Day" program.

"No political label ever tells accurately what is in the bottles," Williams declared. "A party has within it room for wide latitudes of opinion and many shades of ideas."

"The fact that Eisenhower and McCarthy, Warren and Langer, are all Republicans, that Adlai Stevenson and James Byrnes, Hubert Humphrey and Allan Shivers are all Democrats is ample proof of this."

"But I do claim as a clear and indisputable fact that in 20th century politics the Democratic party has been consistently the liberal party and the Republican party has been consistently conservative."

"Woodrow Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman—the new freedom, the New Deal and the Fair Deal stand on one side. On the other stands Harding, Coolidge, Hoover and the Republican party of today which cannot decide whether it is the party of Eisenhower or the party of McCarthy."

MR. AND MRS. Francis Lynch pretty up their two adopted blind daughters, Elizabeth Anne (left) and Susan Patricia, in their home in New York. They just adopted Elizabeth Anne from the Boston Nursery for Blind Babies.

In 4 Years Arms Aid Hits $7.7 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower told Congress today in a little more than four years the United States has given $7.7 billion worth of guns, ammunition and other military equipment to strengthen free nations against the threats of Soviet power.

The weapons supplied, he said, included 30,792 tanks and combat vehicles, 5,340 aircraft, 601 Navy vessels and 2 million small arms and machineguns.

The figures he disclosed in the report on the mutual security program covered the period from the beginning of military assistance in October 1949 through last December. He said almost 50 per cent of the total was shipped during 1953.

The report pictured many nations as regaining economic health and depending less on American assistance.

But the President asserted "as long as the harsh threat to world peace exists our country will continue to shoulder the heavy obligations of world leadership."

He said military assistance and economic aid programs, though constantly revised "cannot be drastically cut without undoing much of the rewarding success which has been so painstakingly and laboriously achieved."

Husband-Slayer Pleads Innocent

PORTSMOUTH (AP)—A Gent, tense woman who threw telephone and coffee cups while being questioned in Scioto County jail pleaded innocent today to a first degree murder charge.

She is Mrs. Hattie Boggs, 31, accused of the pistol slaying of her husband, James, 51, Friday. Boggs' body was found on the kitchen floor of his nine-room house near Henley, about 18 miles northwest of here. Police found the wife in an adjoining room, calmly rocking a baby.

Dem Senators Say McCarthy Is Outweighed

senator he would have had the country's support.

"Had the Eisenhower administration chosen to act in defense of itself and of the nation which it must govern, it would have had the grateful and dedicated support of all but a tiny and deluded minority of our people," he declared.

But, Stevenson said, Eisenhower had accepted "mccarthysm" as the Republican party's "best formula for political success."

He declared the President had been persuaded to adopt this course by "a group of political plungerers." He contended that this view of the President's political role was the "inescapable answer" to the question, "Why have the demagogues triumphed so often?"

"When demagoguery and deceit become a national political movement, we Americans are in trouble; not just Democrats, but all of us," Stevenson said.

In addition to declaring that the President viewed "mccarthysm" as a valuable political formula, Stevenson cited a list of ills that he said had been visited upon the governmental structure because of "mccarthysm."

He then warned that "those who live by the sword of slander also may perish by it, for now it is also being used against distinguished Republicans." He said that a "sorry example" was the "baseless charges hurled against our honored Chief Justice (Earl Warren)."

He said this "sowing of the dragon's teeth of dissension" had produced a series of "aggressions against the Republic" with "terrible consequences" that he listed:

"Our State Department has been assailed and demoralized; the American voice abroad has been enfeebled; our educational system has been attacked; our press threatened; our servants of God impugned; a former President maligned; the Executive departments invaded; our foreign policy confused; the President himself patronized, and now the integrity, loyalty and morale of the United States Army have been assailed."

If some of his listeners felt that he was making a Republican rather than a Democratic speech by counseling unity in the Republican party and Administration, Stevenson declared, then his answer was, "You bet I am!"

"For as Democrats we don't believe in political extermination of Republicans, nor do we believe in political fratricide, in the extermination of one another," Stevenson declared.

General Dean Plans Suicide If Captured

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, captive of the Communists for three years, testified today he would take poison if he ever were captured again.

Gen. Dean, a Medal of Honor holder, testified as a defense witness before a military court of inquiry in the case of Marine Col. Frank Schwable, who confessed falsely to germ warfare while a prisoner in Korea. The purpose of the inquiry is to determine whether court martial action shall be taken against the fier.

Under questioning, Dean retold the story of his own attempt at suicide after 32 hours of continuous interrogation by the Communists. He was too weak to get away, Dean testified, but he thought he could seize an unguarded machine gun, kill his interrogator and then "put the barrel in my mouth." He got the gun but the trigger mechanism wouldn't work. And he was knocked down and disarmed.

"Never having been subjected to physical torture — pierced with bamboo spears, or had splinters stuck under my finger nails and set fire—I didn't know whether I might have given him (the interrogator) what he was working on at that time, the defense plans for Japan," Dean said. "If I ever go to war again, I'll carry along a pill which I'll take if I'm captured."

DeMolay Initiation Rituals Scheduled

The Circleville Chapter of Order of DeMolay will have initiatory ceremonies for a group of candidates at 7:30 p. m. Monday in Masonic Temple.

This will be the first initiation for officers who were installed in February and for which ritualistic rehearsals have been conducted for the last two Sundays.

Robert L. Fausnaugh is master counselor; Larry Pankau will present the rose speech; George Bowling will dramatize Jacques DeMolay in the DeMolay degree.

Visitors are expected from Lancaster, Chillicothe and Adelphi. All members of Masonic and DeMolay orders are invited.

Coercion Seen In Rail Battle

NEW YORK (AP)—Financier Robert R. Young says the management of the New York Central Railroad is "coercing" its employees to fight his attempt to take over control of the line.

Young said yesterday that an employee had complained to him that department heads were telling each worker that he would be expected to solicit the proxies of six shareholders in his neighborhood.

The work, said Young, is to be done on the employee's own time.

Extra Meeting Set Tuesday On Fire Needs

sulted the night of the Maizo Mill blaze.

RESPONDING TO a vigorous warning from Fire Chief Talmer Wise and a group of local business men, City Council said immediate steps would be launched to buy at least one new fire truck and complete a contract with two townships—Circleville and Washington.

Official spokesmen said the two townships, already protected by a temporary firefighting pact with the city, would contribute according to their assessed tax valuations to a city fund for the purchase of new fire equipment. However, at their latest session, the lawmakers indicated snags have developed in this line of planning.

It was later explained the whole subject of city fire protection, because of its various problems, would be held for a full discussion at the extra gathering.

Behind the immediate picture looms the prospect of a "fire protection levy", to be placed before the voters sometime before next November.

Although Council President Ben Gordon suggested the lack of parking space—and the related evils of the double parkers—be continued at the extra meeting, there was no sign that any of the lawmakers had solutions to offer at this time. Meanwhile, city police have launched an all-out drive against the double parkers, warning all motorists that double parking itself is illegal—no matter how short a time the driver is away from the automobile.

It was announced early Monday that Tuesday night's meeting would be of Council "as a committee", and hence no final action would be taken on any matter during the session.

Surviving her are a daughter, Mrs. Porter; a sister, Miss Etta Miller of Millersburg; four grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Laura Thomas, 86, died at 2:30 p. m. Saturday in her home, on Amanda Route 1.

Surviving her are her husband, Sydney; two sons, Isaac and Charles; a sister, Flora Genrich, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in Cedar Hill Evangelical United Brethren church. Burial will be in Amanda Cemetery by direction of Van Cleve Funeral Home, Amanda.

Friends may call in the residence at any time.

JACK PENCE

Funeral services for Jack Sumner Pence of 1094 Oregon Ave., Columbus, were to have been held at 2:30 p. m. Monday in Spears Funeral Home, Columbus. Burial was to have been made in Mt. Sterling Cemetery.

Mr. Pence is survived by three daughters: Mrs. Opal Bright, Mrs. Jo Anne Hastlow and Mrs. Geraldine Palmer; two sons, Ralph and John; a sister, Laura Dellebaugh and 17 grandchildren.

MRS. W. P. SALLADY

Mrs. Emma J. Sallady, 86, of Ashville, died in the R & M Nursing Home, Circleville, Sunday morning. She was born Feb. 4, 1868, in Madison Township, daughter of John and Jane Shannon Wilson, and had lived in the Ashville area all her life. Her husband, W. P. Sallady, preceded her in death.

Surviving are two sisters and one brother, Mrs. Sara Alsbaugh, Mrs. Anna Hedges, and John Wilson, all of Ashville.

Funeral services will be from the Bastian Funeral Home, Ashville, at 2 p. m. Tuesday, with the Rev. Emerson Abts officiating. Burial will be in Reber Hill cemetery.

The body is at the funeral home.

Burglar Robs Ashville Home, Takes $1,000

A thief who ransacked a rural Ashville home Saturday night and walked off with more than $1,000 in cash, which he had found in various parts of the house, was being sought Monday by sheriff's deputies.

The money was taken between 7 and 10:30 p. m. while the three occupants of the house were away. The home belongs to Mrs. Marcus Rife, Route 1, a half mile east of Walnut School. Living there with Mrs. Rife are her son, Howard, and daughter, Mary Catherine.

The thief broke into the home by prying open a window. Then, apparently taking his time for a methodical search, he ransacked both floors of the house, finding the loot in sacks and tin cans.

From a bedroom closet he got $600 in nickels, dimes, quarters and half-dollars. A dresser yielded $260 in paper money. From a not a cache came bags containing $150 in pennies, and $15 in bills. Two or three dollars in coins were taken from a dining room buffet.

A sack containing $50 worth of pennies was not taken, and a sheaf of 20 one-dollar bills was overlooked in a bedroom closet.

Howard Rife, who had taken a television set to be repaired, was the first to come home after the robbery. He sat down to listen to the radio and fell asleep, unaware of the robbery, which was reported to the sheriff's office at 1:30 a. m. Sunday.

Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff investigated.

Burke Campaigns For Tax Relief

AKRON (AP)—Sen. Thomas A. Burke (D-Ohio) is urging a reduction in excise taxes and an increase in personal income tax exemptions as a means of improving business.

The senator said since a year ago the number of persons covered by insurance who have become unemployed has tripled.

Reducing excise taxes and increasing exemptions would "automatically lift our economy from its present temporary slack by increasing the consumption of goods, he said.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

JOHN SULLIVAN

John Michael Sullivan, two-week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Sullivan of 870 Steward Ave., Columbus, died Friday in Children's hospital, Columbus.

Surviving him, in addition to his parents, are two sisters, Mary Linda and Patricia Ann; paternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary A. Sullivan, Columbus, and maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hardin of Williamsport.

Funeral services were to have been held at 2 p. m. Monday in O'Shaughnessy Funeral Home, Columbus. Burial was to have been in St. Joseph's Cemetery, Shadeville.

MRS. JAMES REDDICK

Ida Mae Reddick, 78, died at 10:15 p. m. Sunday in Circleville Home and Hospital, E. Main St.

Mrs. Reddick was born Feb. 15, 1876 in Iowa, daughter of Dan and Mary Miller. She had spent most of her life in Coshocton County, where she was a member of the Presbyterian church of Keene. She also had lived with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Porter of Circleville Route 4.

She was preceded in death by two husbands, Andrew J. Merrell, who died in 1910 and James J. Reddick, who died in 1933.

Surviving her are a daughter, Mrs. Porter; a sister, Miss Etta Miller of Millersburg; four grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Friends may call in the DeMolay Funeral home Monday evening after 6 p. m. The body will be removed Tuesday to Davison Funeral Home, Coshocton, where services will be held at 11 a. m. Wednesday with the Rev. Mr. Hewitt officiating. Burial will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery at Keene.

Burke Campaigns For Tax Relief

AKRON (AP)—Sen. Thomas A. Burke (D-Ohio) is urging a reduction in excise taxes and an increase in personal income tax exemptions as a means of improving business.

The senator said since a year ago the number of persons covered by insurance who have become unemployed has tripled.

Reducing excise taxes and increasing exemptions would "automatically lift our economy from its present temporary slack by increasing the consumption of goods, he said.

AKRON (AP)—Two gunmen boarded an Akron Transportation Co. bus at the end of the line yesterday and robbed driver John Peterak of $104.

Motorist Injured After Arrest Here

A Columbus man was reported in "somewhat improved" condition at Berger Hospital Monday after suffering serious injuries in a fall at Pickaway County jail.

The sheriff's department reported Robert R. Schaffer, 29, of 198 Cleveland Ave., Columbus, suffered head injuries when he fell in the jail Saturday night. Deputies said the man became unruly after being taken into custody on accusation of drunk driving.

Schaffer was arrested by Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff at the intersection of Routes 23 and 188 about 8 p. m. Saturday.

Later, the sheriff's office reported, he broke into a rage at the jail and swung a mop in such a manner that the floor of the jail was covered with water. Then, deputies said, he slipped while swinging a drain plunger and struck his head on the cement floor.

Black gloves were considered a sign of mourning in Colonial times.

Will Hays, 74, Dies In Indiana

SULLIVAN, Ind. (AP)—Will H. Hays, 74, who led a premeditated cleanup of movie morals after uniting the Republican party behind President Harding, will be buried in his beloved home town Wednesday.

The man who served 24 years as so-called czar of the motion picture industry died in the quiet of his home here yesterday.

Though he retired from the Hollywood job to his law practice in 1945, the "Hays office" code of good taste in movies remained entrenched until recently, when signs of rebellion began to appear.

Jane Russell, Mate To Make Movies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Jane Russell and her husband, ex-football star Bob Waterfield, today announced plans to produce six motion pictures during the next three years.

Miss Russell will star in three of them and negotiations are under way for other players to head casts for the others. All are to be released through United Artists.

Miss Russell, whose contract with RKO expired last month, and Waterfield, former quarterback with UCLA and the Los Angeles Rams, have formed a company, Russ-Field, Inc., for production of the films.

Japan, U.S. Sign Mutual Defense Pact

TROOPS TO BE REPLACED

Guns, Grain; Yankee Troops To Be Replaced

TOKYO (AP)—Japan and the United States today signed a mutual defense pact to give the Japanese both guns and grain and hasten the day when American soldiers can withdraw from the island empire.

The mutual defense assistance agreement will pour $100 million of American aid into Japan's economy in the next three months and probably amount to much more in the long run.

U. S. Ambassador John Allison said the agreement "takes us one step nearer the time when the United States can withdraw its forces from Japan."

The agreement will boost Japan's defense force from 120,000 to 160,000 men and hold it along more military lines. The United States will supply ships and planes.

The United States also will start the movement of 500,000 tons of surplus wheat and 100,000 tons of barley to Japan. And Japan will sell the grain domestically and in turn use the money for guns.

THE AGREEMENT was hammered out in eight months of negotiation which at times brought the Liberal government of Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida under intense opposition criticism. Despite Socialist opposition, the government expects ratification by April 1.

Allison emphasized that the pact does not require Japan "to send its young men abroad." He quoted Secretary of State Dulles who said recently the agreement would be "purely of a defensive nature, directed exclusively toward contributing to the defense and security of the Japanese homeland."

However, neither does the agreement specify that Japan should not send troops wherever it saw fit.

The agreement binding Japan to the Western democracies in the fight against communism provides for destroyers, tanks, jeeps, airplanes and other military needs. It also provides for a 700-man military advisory group to serve with the Japanese defense force.

Material given to the Japanese cannot be resold to other nations. Actually, Allison and Okazaki signed seven agreements. These are:

1. The mutual defense assistance agreement.
2. A purchase agreement covering import of surplus U. S. grain.
3. An economic arrangement agreement. This provides Japan $50 million in surplus grain for sale there. The proceeds are to be spent on military buildup.
4. An investment guarantee agreement. This allows American investors the right to recover investments in Japan and take out profits. Capital can be taken out after two years at the rate of 20 per cent yearly.
5. An agreement for the return of material no longer useful or needed.
6. An agreement to call the grain procurement a direct purchase in the event the Diet does not ratify the over-all agreement.
7. An exchange of letters stating views on item 4.

Six Motorists Draw Penalties In Municipal Court Hearings

Six motorists were handed penalties in city court here Saturday following hearings before Municipal Judge Sterling Lamb.

The cases were:

Carvee M. West, 36, of Columbus; crossing the yellow line; arrested by State Patrolman Gene Miller; fined $10 and costs.

Melvin H. Harmon, 19, of Valley Bridge, W. Va.; crossing the yellow line; arrested by Officer Rod List; fined $10 and costs.

WILBUR HUNT, 19, Gallup, Ky.; failure to file registration; arrested by Sgt. Turney Ross; fined $10 and costs.

Leo M. Rievel, 22, of Canton, O.; speeding at 50 in a 35-miles-per-hour zone; arrested by Officer Charles Smith; fined $15 and costs.

James A. Kuhn, 19, of Circleville

IN ADDITION to the cases listed in city court, State Patrolman Gene Miller arrested four other motorists. Their cases were handled as follows:

Kenneth H. Riffle, 26, of Columbus; fined $20 and costs for speeding at 70 on Route 23, and fined $25 and costs for operating a motor vehicle on the registration of a former owner; hearing before Justice of Peace Walter Heise of South Bloomfield.

James H. Cooper, 38, of Wheelersburg; speeding at 75 on Route 23; fined $25 and costs by Heise.

Thomas W. Wiegand, 18, of Lockbourne; crossing the yellow line; fined $15 and costs by Heise.

George M. Hogeback, 53, of Hamilton; speeding at 70 on Route 22; fined $15 and costs; hearing before Mayor William Johnson of Williamsport.

Three Injured In Auto Crash Sunday Night

A 16-year-old Cincinnati girl, who reportedly became angry with her parents and showed it by driving away her father's car without permission, was injured, along with two others, in a crash at 11:45 p. m. Sunday on Route 159, one mile south of Route 56.

She is Mary Jo Janson, who received cuts above the left eye and on both legs. The other two persons, both of whom were riding in the other car, are Douglas N. Tabor, 35, chest injuries and cuts on both legs, and Robert Shillinger, 34, right knee cut and right arm hurt. Both live in Warren.

Sheriff's deputies Carl W. White and Dwight Radcliff said the girl could not account for the accident. But Tabor told them her car was following another and as it turned out to pass a third car the girl's automobile swerved to the right, then back into the road and far to the left, colliding with the car driven by Tabor.

The front ends of both vehicles were demolished. While the Janson car was insured, the insurance does not cover the estimated $600 damage done to the Tabor car, Deputy White said.

The girl, who will be 17 next month, did not have a driver's license, but no charge was placed against her because she is a minor, White said.

2 Ohio Areas To Know Soon About Airport

WASHINGTON (AP)—Columbus and Southern Ohio soon will know whether to expect federal money they seek for airport construction and expansion.

Commerce Undersecretary Robert B. Murray said his department will make up its mind whether to recommend resumption of federal airport aid in about two weeks.

Columbus wants to improve Port Columbus, Portsmouth, near the heart of the southern Ohio atomic plant area, wants to build an airport to serve the booming district.

Murray said the Commerce Department is waiting for a report on the advisability of resuming airport aid from its transportation council.

If the report is favorable, Murray said, the administration will seriously consider asking Congress for a supplementary appropriation.

Two Ohio congressmen, Reps. Jenkins, a Republican, and Polk, a Democrat, recently appealed to the House for help in building a Southern Ohio airport.

Said Polk: "I was advised several months ago by the former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, Gordon Dean, that a suitable air field was very necessary for the use of the government and for the use of various activities in connection with this atomic energy plant."

Jenkins said: "These people have a moral right as well as a financial right to expect some agency of the government to come forward with a program that will do what should be done."

World Today

By James Marlow
Associated Press
News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—If Republicans lie awake nights, thinking rain on the roof sounds like ballots dropping in a box, it's because they have problems. The usual kind, plus some.

The usual kind: convincing November's voters they've done dandy in the ordinary affairs of government, including handling a recession, and should be re-elected to control of Congress two more years.

The plus some: the conflict between Sen. McCarthy and the Eisenhower administration. If it breaks into open war, McCarthy and the party both face possible losses in November.

The Republicans might lose to the Democrats if President Eisenhower broke openly with the Wisconsin Republican and the party split into Eisenhower and McCarthy factions.

(Adlai Stevenson suggested Saturday night, however, that if Eisenhower did break with the senator his administration would have had the "grateful and dedicated support" of all but a "tiny and deluded minority.")

If McCarthy and the President should break and the Democrats take over Congress, McCarthy would lose chairmanship of the investigating subcommittee which has brought him headlines and power.

To make the problem extraneous: if the conflict continues without a real break, the Republicans may emerge from November beaten up. One interparty crisis after another could leave the voters fed up.

Republican defeat this year would mean Eisenhower would have to depend on a Democratic-run Congress to put over his program for the two remaining years of his term or watch the Democrats ram through their own program.

At any rate, two years of control in Congress would give the Democrats the means and time for laying the groundwork for a combined congressional and presidential victory in 1956.

As chairman, with a staff at his command paid by the taxpayers, McCarthy can make his own investigations. He runs the show. Losing the chairmanship might not be too hard on him. He did pretty well before he had it.

But the possibility of his losing the chairmanship in November has raised questions about his performance. For instance: would he be willing to force an issue with Eisenhower and a break, even though it cost him the chairmanship and his party control of Congress?

If there is ever an answer to that it may also provide answers to questions about his ambitions. The current speculation about what McCarthy wants can be reduced essentially to three points of view:

1. He has no ambition beyond wanting to be a good senator. Being a good one means for him, right now, routing out any Communists still in the government and exposing anyone who is "soft" on them. He feels so deeply the rightness of his job he will not backtrack for anyone, no matter what the consequences to him or the party.
2. What he really wants is control of the Republican party. He's

Farmer Shuns U.S. Fingerprints

CLEVELAND (AP)—After 14 years of unsuccessful coaxing, the United States attorney's office has put out an order for the arrest of Matthew Elavsky, an alien who refused to be fingerprinted.

Robert C. Grisanti, an assistant U. S. attorney, said the 56-year-old native of Czechoslovakia, who runs a farm at Barberton, refused on religious grounds, quoting an admonishment in the Bible's book of Revelation against taking "the mark of the beast."

The passages cited by the farmer concern the story of how "satan" portrayed as a dragon, is cast from heaven. The dragon's powers are bestowed on a beast and those who worship the monster are said to "receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads."

Federal law requires aliens to be fingerprinted for registration purposes.

Retail Sales Show Slight Decline

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio State University Bureau of Business Research says total Ohio retail sales were down three per cent in January compared with the same month last year.

Figures published in the monthly "Ohio Retail Annualist" indicated sales were down in Ohio's eight largest cities.

Percentage drops by cities compared with January last year:

Youngstown down 16 per cent, Akron 11, Canton 11, Cincinnati 7, Cleveland 5, Columbus 4, Dayton 9 and Toledo 5.

Ohio GOP Solon Cool On McCarthy

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Rep. William H. Ayres (R-Ohio) says the Republican party would be better off "if we were able to expose communism without McCarthy being identified with it."

"If McCarthy pulls another Zwickler deal it will have a bad effect for the Republicans at the polls' next fall," Ayres declared while attending hearings here on handling of home loans to war veterans. He is a member of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee.

A Roman Catholic and knows the tradition: no Catholic has ever been president. Therefore, he has no presidential ambitions. But as party head he could make or break presidents. That would make him the most powerful man in the country. A Republican loss in November, and his loss of the chairmanship, wouldn't hurt him; he could use the next two years to rally Republican support around him and away from Eisenhower.

3. He doesn't know what he wants. He was an unknown until 1950. That year he made a speech declaring there were Communists in the State Department and suddenly found himself the center of attraction. He found he could ride that subject to fame and power. And he has. He has no long-range plan. What he wants is power, or the sense of power, so badly and he wants headlines so hungrily that he'll blindly risk smashing the party to get his way and his name in headlines.

Not any one of those three speculations about McCarthy may prove right. No matter what his ambition, the fact is: every time he's reached a crisis with the administration, he has let it be followed by a brief cooling-off period. Then, zowie. He was back again.

School Notes

ASHVILLE-HARRISON
By Ellen Essick

Ashville-Harrison Junior Class will present a three-act comedy, "You Can't Take It With You," Friday, March 26, in the school auditorium. The play, written by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, will be directed by Nancy Dorman, junior English teacher.

The cast consists of Doris Axe, Mary Lou Cloud, Shirley Tucker, Dale Puckett, Eugene Wheeler, Charles Trone, Richard Swank, Robert Wright, Lola Shreve, David Frase, Danny Barth, Dwight Norris, Richard Partee, Shirley George, Leroy Tigner, Becky Dountz, Mike Hatfield, Student Assistant Director Marian Peters, and Prompter Hily Murray.

The seniors have selected their commencement invitations and ordered them from a firm in Minnesota. Earlier in the year, on order from the juniors, the company's representative, Ken Lewis, made arrangements for Ashville's class rings to be purchased through an Ashville Jewelry store at the request of Superintendent John Hardin.

"Red" and "Zeke" Turner of the Midwestern Hayride appeared at Ashville Feb. 26, sponsored by the sophomore class.

Even though the performance was held the night of the finals in the basketball tournament and Ashville was playing, Class President Nancy Barth pronounced it a success which netted nearly $60 toward the class trip to Washington and New York City in the latter part of the senior year.

The manual training department, under William Barnetson's instruction, is remodeling the shop. Students have refinished two table tops to use mechanical drawing and crafts. A new bench for hand tools also is planned.

Most of the boys are now working on cedar chests, but due to the lack of space everyone cannot do wood-work, so the crafts will be added and perhaps some instruction in electricity.

The advanced math class, with Sheldon Myers instructing, has computed the cubic air space in the building. The boards of education requested this information to help them divide the fuel bill properly, since the grade and high schools are in the same building and each board has a separate budget.

Among the mathematical problems encountered were:

Translating blueprint distances to actual distances in feet; computing volumes of rectangular right prisms and triangular right prisms; changing cubic inches to cubic feet by dividing the number of cubic inches by 1,728; use of decimals in the fundamental processes because of fractional dimensions; reading and interpreting blueprints; organizing and tabulating data; learning to judge distances and volumes.

The students, who computed the high school space as equal to 269,613 cubic feet, were:

James Hopper, principal's office and laboratory with supply and utility rooms; Sharon Pontius, teacher's room, senior room, sophomore room; Nancy Cromley, junior room; Eugene Wheeler, study hall, home economics room, boy's and girl's rooms; Dwight Norris, typing room, main office, library, lunchroom; Mike Hatfield, halls and stairs; John Swingle, manual training, finishing room, corridor, doors and windows, supply room.

The following students found the grade school contained 80,361 cubic feet:

James Hopper, first grade; Dwight Norris, second grade and boy's room; John Swingle, third grade; Bob Cline, fourth and fifth grades; Nancy Cromley, sixth grade (south) and girl's room; Jack Hutchison, sixth grade (north); Sharon Pontius, seventh grade; Eugene Wheeler, eighth grade and principal's office; Mike Hatfield, halls and stairs.

Seven new sewing machines have been purchased for the home economics department. One of these is a zig-zag machine which will sew all kinds of decorative stitches without attachments.

Students in the bookkeeping class have entered their papers in the Business Education World's 17th Annual International Bookkeeping Contest.

As a special project while studying Shakespeare's "MacBeth," the senior English class has made miniature theaters, patterned after theaters of the Elizabethan Era, dressed dolls to resemble Lady Macbeth and Lady Macduff, made drawings of the different characters in the play and some of the scenes as they imagine them. Some of the students also wrote character studies.

Final inspection of Ashville's new elementary building was to be held Monday for the purpose of accepting the building from the contractors.

NEW HOLLAND HIGH
Classes at New Holland High School are now swinging into activities which were scheduled to wait until after the end of basketball season.

The junior and senior classes are starting to work on their class projects, usually run at the same time as an English and Public Speaking project. Final presentation by the two classes this year will be about a week apart. The juniors will present a play, "The Nut Family," and the seniors will stage a production billed "If Mother Only Knew."

Plans are being completed for a noontime ping pong tournament at New Holland High to determine the laurels for 1954. Defending champ for the girls is Joy Hosler, while Russell Jacobs will defend his title in the boys division.

Your Election Laws . . .

By Ted W. Brown
Secretary of State of Ohio
(One of a Series)

With important Primary and General Elections scheduled to be held in 1954, a discussion of the types of ballots which are used by Ohio voters is in order.

There are four types used in Ohio, namely: 1) Primary Ballots, 2) Office Type Ballots, 3) Nonpartisan Ballots and 4) Questions and Issues Ballots.

The first three types mentioned all contain the names of candidates for office, and the Questions and Issues Ballot, as the name connotes, contains tax levies, bond issues, initiative and referendum, constitutional amendment, or any questions to be submitted to the voters.

As Chief Election Officer of the State of Ohio, we have prescribed two Primary Election ballots to be used at the Primary, May 4.

ONE IS DESIGNATED "Official Democratic Primary Ballot" and the other, "Official Republican Primary Ballot". On each is listed the party's candidates for nomination, the winners of each party to oppose the winners of the other party for election to the offices in November.

A candidate qualifies to have his or her name printed on the Primary Ballot by filing a declaration of candidacy and petition signed by the required number of persons, who are members of the party with which the candidate is affiliated. These ballots are separate — the Democrat ballots handed to the voters on Primary Election day who are members of the Democratic Party and the Republican ballots to voters who declare they are members of that party.

Ohio's election system is built on the so-called "two party" system, giving each party member a right to determine who will represent each party as candidates in the general election. The selection of these candidates is important — so be sure to vote at the Primary Election, as well as at the General Election!

CONTENTMENT

LIFE ON A Pacific island and life in New York City were recently compared—to the disadvantage of the latter—by two anthropologists. Inhabitants of the island are at ease and happy, they found; residents of New York City tense and unhappy.

Twenty-five years ago people on Manus Island in the Admiralties were quarrelsome and greedy. They found out about law and justice in Australia. Missionaries from the West taught them brotherhood, and American soldiers in World War II gave them ideas about modern methods.

The islanders, emerging from the equivalent of the Stone Age a quarter of a century ago, are happy practicing their new knowledge. Of course, New Yorkers knew more generations ago than these islanders do today. Once, it is said, they, too, practiced what they knew and were happy. But all Americans, including New Yorkers, have found life unexciting unless there is something new added almost daily. As a result, they are tense and pessimistic.

The islanders accepted and applied what they learned at face value. Americans question, criticize and rebel. That is the route to progress, but not to happiness. The islanders, although enjoying their new knowledge and way of life, are content with the new status quo and are happy.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES

APPROACHING the subject in a unique manner by terming it a game of giveaway, officials of the Oklahoma Farm Bureau came up with interesting statistics concerning prices of food. Farmers receive a smaller percentage of the food dollar today than at the end of World War I.

Of the housewife's dollar the producer receives 44 cents today. In the year 1946 his share was 52 cents. But in the meantime his costs have increased enormously.

The Oklahoma Farm Bureau points out that if the farmer gave his crops away, food costs still would be high. If the farmer donated the wheat necessary to make a loaf of 17-cent store bread, the consumer would still pay 14.3 cents for it. Free cotton made into a $3.50 shirt would reduce price of the garment 20 cents. A similar ratio pertains to practically everything produced by the farmer, according to the bureau's survey.

But lest the consumer jump to the conclusion that the retailer or wholesaler is profiteering, the bureau finds that, on the contrary, increased prices in every instance are attributable to increased labor and transportation (which is mostly labor) costs.

These Days

Every man, in private or public life, functions within the margins of a philosophy of action. Joe McCarthy has been with us long enough for the pattern of his philosophy to be sufficiently clear to be describable. Attacked more viciously than any man in public position since Herbert Hoover was President, he has survived, not because the powerful men of the country or even his party favor him, but because the people support him. The phenomenon requires analysis.

McCarthy is not a military hero; he is not a great orator; he has never assumed leadership either in legislation or administration. He is not a scholar or a jurist. Nevertheless, few Senators will deny that McCarthy can go into their states and affect the vote on Election Day. McCarthy is not a demagogue, for he makes no promises to the people, sets forth no broad program and asks for no votes. He actually risked defeat in Wisconsin, where he ran for office, by campaigning in states where he did not run for office. He defeated Senators Tydings in Maryland and Benton in Connecticut.

Why then do the people follow McCarthy, so that he represents substantial power in the Congress? The answer is that in the simplicity of his intellectual orientation, McCarthy mirrors not only what the people think but what they want.

One can use such a term as Americanism, but that is not quite it. It is Americanism of a kind—a kind which those of us over 40 experienced and those under 40 have only heard about. It is an expression on its negative side of a rejection of Marxism; on its positive side it amounts to articulate patriotism.

Arthur Krock, for whom I have the greatest respect, refers to McCarthy as a bully; yet Krock can remember, I am sure, when if a man did not pledge allegiance to the flag or did not rise to the "Star-Spangled Banner," someone made him do it. And there was a time when if one heard someone denouncing the United States, he would punch him. Rude! Uncouth! Brutal! Immature! Call it what you will, but it was an emotional response to patriotism by energetic, strong-willed people.

In our maturity (if it is not senility) we have become so refined that a soldier may wear the uniform of the country who will not even pledge loyalty to the flag and Constitution. Is it refinement or is it the denaturing of national pride?

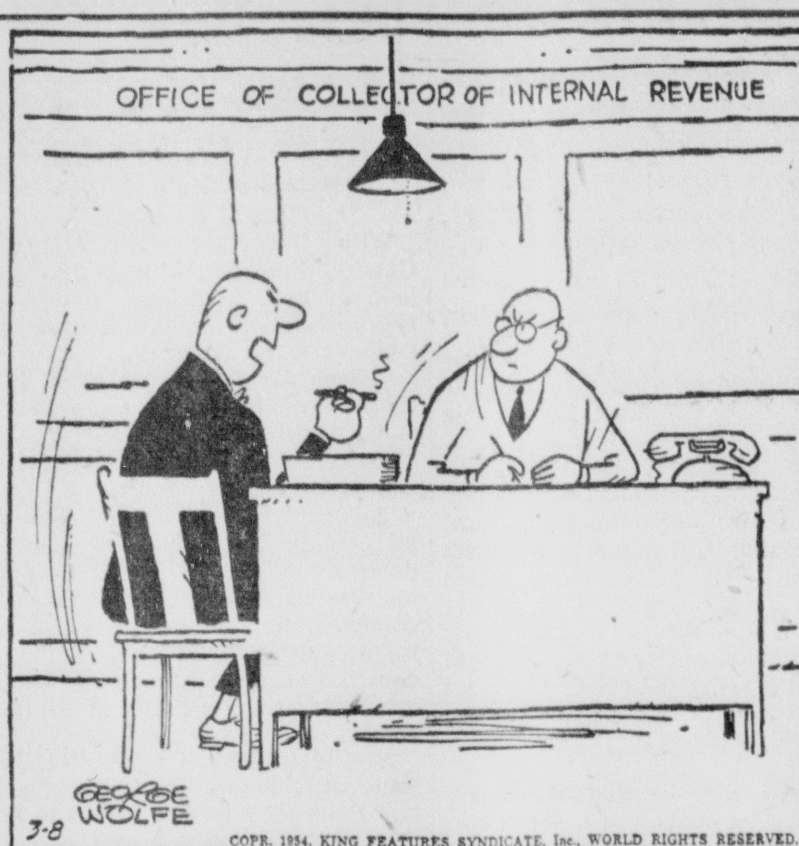

Were McCarthy only an anti-Communist, he would make no greater impression on the public mind than the other millions of Americans who are anti-Communist, some of whom write articles and make speeches and report on their wicked neighbors. His strength is that he adds to anti-Communism a revived patriotism, a resurrection of nationalism, an insistence upon a traditional respect for country, flag and Constitution.

Many who oppose McCarthy are as patriotic as he is and have perhaps thought the problem out as well as or better than he has. But they are gentle in their enunciation; they are polite in their attacks; they are unwilling to risk being lampooned; they are too refined to soil themselves with the mud of battle.

Odors Aid Doctor's Diagnosis

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

The physician's sense of smell, developed through years of experience, is one of his greatest diagnostic tools. Odors are often of great value to doctors for diagnosing certain diseases.

For example, urine may have a special odor after certain substances are eaten. There is a typical odor after a person has eaten asparagus. Many persons even consult a physician for this odor. However, it is only due to the foods that are consumed.

Urine with the odor of ammonia is often suggestive of a bladder infection, however.

Breath's Clues

The odor of one's breath can also be of diagnostic significance. If a person has kidney poisoning, the breath usually takes on a characteristic odor. In persons suffering from diabetic coma, the breath has a sweet acetone smell.

Foul breath can be caused by gum infection, stomach difficulty, vitamin deficiency, cancer, diseases of the teeth or many other such conditions.

Fever Odors

Typhoid fever, yellow fever and even rheumatic fever are said to have their distinctive odors.

Therefore, one can see why a good sense of smell is so important to a physician. It is just one more diagnostic help that the physician employs in solving the problem of diagnosing disease, so that he may then apply the most useful treatment.

In 1900, Robert F. Scott made the first of two expeditions to the Antarctic, intent upon reaching the South Pole. He didn't quite make it then (and he didn't, in 1912, it was only to discover that Amundsen had beaten him to it), but the story of his adventures aboard the "Discovery" still makes thrilling reading. One of his chief lieutenants was Sir Ernest Shackleton whose task it was to enlist recruits for the perilous trip. He did it by means of a single ad in the London Times, which pulled answers from danger-loving rovers all over the world. This is how the ad read:

"Men wanted for Hazardous Journey. Small wages, bitter cold, long months of complete darkness, constant danger, safe return doubtful. Honor and recognition in case of success. Sir E. Shackleton."

The Doctor Disagrees

By Elizabeth Seifert

CHAPTER TWENTY

SHELLY took off one of the snow-white gloves and smoothed it against her flat black purse. "Will you tell me one thing, Craig?"

"One thing, maybe."

"Were you drunk, night before last? Tuesday night?"

"No."

Shelly waited for more. It came. "Shelly, the Medical society doesn't care whether I was drunk that night, or not. They will deal with the fact that a patient died, that I was called and that I did not come. In other words, I, a doctor, let a patient die."

"Mrs. Armes?"

"What was wrong with her?"

"As far as I could tell over the phone, she had had a seizure of angina."

"That's a heart attack?"

"Yes." He was watching her alertly, and she tried to stifle the suspicion that it was as a young and pretty woman that he watched her, not—

"If," she said briskly—or as briskly as her naturally caressing voice could manage. "Would Mrs. Armes have lived, doctor, if you'd got there?"

"I don't know."

"What do you think?"

"I think she probably would not have lived. But, Shelly," he went on hastily, against the look of satisfaction in her face, "we must remember that I did not get there—and that Mrs. Armes died. That is my sin. That is what the Medical society will consider in any action it takes. In a way, I'm lucky, of course. If I had lived back in Babylon, they would have cut off my hands for losing that case."

Horror blanched her face. "Oh, you're joking, and—"

"It's a matter of history. A doctor's fee was fixed by the success of his operation. If he failed—that is, if a patient died when under his care—his hands were cut off."

"But what if it was hopeless? I mean, some patients . . ."

"In Babylon, it was unethical for a physician to take on a 'hopeless case.'" His rich voice twanged, and Shelly flushed. "There are some Babylonian doctors here in Norfolk, too."

"Don't tease me, Craig. This is important."

"Yes, it is," he agreed. "That's why I'm anxious for you to understand that the Medical society has a right to suspend my membership. It is their right, and their obligation, to prevent doctors of a certain moral character from practicing."

"Does that mean losing your license, Craig?"

"It could mean that. If they recommended its suspension to the board."

"But isn't that an awful lot of power to give a society of men in a town like Norfolk?"

Copyright, 1953, by Elizabeth Seifert. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

"All local societies have that power, however." He stretched a brown hand and a muscular arm down the bed toward her, as if to comfort her. "Remember, Shelly," he said gently, "that a few weeks ago I tried to get our local society to use that same power on Dr. Lewis. And if I thought it was applicable to him—and it was! I still say so—I have to submit to the use of it on me."

He turned his head away, and she saw the muscles of his jaw tighten. "I say this, even though I am, in principle, opposed to the A.M.A.'s use of power. They have too much power, and they use it badly. You know how I feel about the closed hospital system, for instance. You've heard me rant about it often enough. Not so much the theory, as its horrifying abuse. But just the same, while they have the right of licensure, they've a right to use it—and if they use it to suspend Lewis, I can't in good conscience deny them the right to suspend me!"

Shelly was doing some quick thinking. The man was obviously willing to crucify himself just to prove that he was consistent.

"Look, Craig, I do know how you feel about the closed hospital system—that it is a way by which good men are kept from practicing and bad doctors are allowed to practice. It is scandalous, and something should be done about it. That's your point, isn't it?"

He cocked a suspicious eyebrow at her. "It's my point, all right, but I had no idea you felt so strongly about it."

Her eyes widened innocently. "But, of course, Craig! You've been telling me—and I can't help but think that if the doctors who feel as you do would get together on this thing . . ."

"If enough of us wanted to, we could accomplish something, of course. But it's certainly a big job—and men, naturally, hesitate to risk their practice, their hospital affiliations. Ideas take a beating, you know, when a man has a family."

"Oh, yes, of course. But, still—Why, Craig, you could make some sort of start right here in Norfolk!"

He looked at her keenly, his thumb nail thoughtfully scratching the adhesive strapped around his ribs. "I'm open to any suggestion . . ."

Shelly stood up. "Well, for one thing, you could object to their throwing you out of the Medical society, and off the hospital staff, just because it looks as if you might have been drunk Tuesday night."

Now she had reached him. She extended her hand, and he took it, held it. "You mean I should fight to maintain my position within the fold?"

"Of course I mean that. I must go now. Miss Browne will want her lunch. You get well, and come."

Shelly was left staring after him. "You get well, and come."

back to work, will you? You're kind of needed around the office."

She walked out of the room, and Craig watched her go, his hand scrubbing at his ear.

The corridor seemed dim after the bright room she had left, and Shelly almost ran into Eleanor. As always, her first thought was of how smart Eleanor looked, wherever one saw her, whatever she was doing. She wore no hat today, and her brown hair looked as if a casual comb had been run through it, but each shining strand lay in its most effective place. Her fleecy coat was slung about her shoulders with just the right off-hand air; the scarf tucked into the opening of her dark red suit looked like a scarf, not a throat bandage.

Eleanor carried a sheaf of flowers, yellow and white snapdragons, faintly and pleasantly fragrant. Her other arm cradled a half-dozen bright-jacketed books—her whole effect was that of having gathered up a few odds and ends, thrown her coat about her shoulders and run over to the hospital.

And yet . . .

"Oh, hello, Shelly," she said breezily. "I'm on my way to see Craig. I don't know if one takes a man flowers! But then I don't know, either, if it's ethical to pay sick-calls on a doctor." She was past Shelly, and had gone breezily into Craig's room, from which issued a fine mixture of her voice and Craig's—and their laughter.

Shelly's head snapped up, and she went swiftly out of range. But as she turned the corner, she threw a resentful look over her shoulder. "I'll bet," she muttered under her breath, "that he doesn't talk to her about what's wrong with the A.M.A."

But maybe he did. It was about all he talked of to Shelly, and she liked it.

But she wondered—Did Craig know that Eleanor was thirty years old? But—oh, what difference did that make? Eleanor was undeniably beautiful—and chic—and artful—

She went out to her car, slammed the door, drove angrily to the office. "Did you know," she asked Miss Browne heatedly, "that Eleanor Walsh was running after Dr. Talbot?"

"Well," said the nurse comfortably, "she's run after other men, and not caught any yet."

Shelly was busy for the rest of that week. She had two rather large projects in hand, and worked on them simultaneously.

The first was an outgrowth of Mrs. Jarvis' night call, and Craig's rebuke to her over the way she had handled it. "You should have called someone else," he'd said.

But who knew? He hadn't said that. She knew all the doctors in town—the Medical society listed twenty-five—but general talk said, "You can't get a doctor to come out at night." Well, maybe the talk was right. She could find out.

Pickaway Garden Club Hosts Covered-Dish Guest Supper

Mrs. J. Eagleson Talks On Scotland

Pickaway Garden club held an annual guest night covered dish supper meeting in the home of Mrs. A. J. Lyle of W. Mound St.

A total of 49 members, 17 guests and a new member, Mrs. Dean Bingham, were present for the affair, which was followed by an address by Mrs. J. O. Eagleson on a tour of Scotland.

Mrs. Eagleson stated that her visit to Scotland was the fulfillment of a dream of many years. The tour covered 600 miles in Northern Scotland from Edinburgh to Glasgow, which territory was covered in six days.

She noted the absence of billboards along the highways, and emphasized the friendliness of the Scottish peoples. She stated that the class distinction so typical of England is entirely absent in Scotland.

Among places of interest mentioned were the site of the old seat of the Scottish kings, and Perth, a former capital of Scotland, and the scene of the assassination of James I.

Mrs. Eagleson was especially impressed with Aberdeen, a great fishing community on the North Sea. This city is called the "granite city" because of the many quarries in the vicinity. She stated that all the buildings in the city are made of granite, which comes in shades of blue, grey and a reddish pink.

Another part of the tour of special interest was the trip along the Caladonian Canal, which joins the natural lakes with canals to make a complete water passage way from the North Sea to the Atlantic Ocean.

The speaker also told of the visit to the island of Iona, called the "Holy Isle", which is the site of the first Christian Mission on the British Isles. She stated that an old monastery there is in the process of restoration. In this non-sectarian church, members of any Christian religious sect may hold services.

Mrs. Eagleson ended her informal talk by singing a Scottish tramping song, "Song of the Isles."

Miss Mary Heffner conducted a business session, during which announcement was made of a flower show to be held April 6, 7 and 8 in the YWCA in Columbus.

The Pickaway Garden club is helping to sponsor an Antique show to be given by the Association of Women's clubs in June.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Richard Jones, Mrs. Charles Thompson and Mrs. Ben Gordon for their arrangements of forest materials.

Next meeting is to be held in the home of Mrs. Harold Anderson of Collins Court.

Choose a butter frosting for the cake you want to put in your freezer; egg white icings do not stand up under freezing. Wrap the frosted cake with aluminum foil and freeze immediately.

A large aluminum food blancher, so useful in preparing foods for the home freezer, may also be used for cooking spaghetti, sterilizing a baby's bottles, frying in deep fat and for boiling a smoked tongue, ham or fowl.

Decorators Use Light Accents For Dark Rooms

By ELEANOR ROSS

While visiting this winter, we've been doing a bit of snooping and note-taking, keeping an eye out for decorative trends.

And from what we've seen, there's one trend which emerges strongly and that's the room done in warm, dark colors. After all the pale puffs, pale greens, off-whites and beige, there are handsome newly decorated rooms done in such colors as terra cotta red, dark sandalwood, chocolate brown, dark lilac, and deep, dark blue. And this goes for bedrooms, as well as living and dining rooms, making for some extremely interesting and novel effects.

In the majority of rooms, we noted, the illumination was good, with plenty of light streaming in through big windows and well placed lamps at night. Maybe it's the amount of light provided by the big windows that has influenced the trend to deep painted walls.

In most cases an excellent job has been achieved of keeping balance by introducing light accents and touches, which of course is a basic principle. The dark and the light are smartly linked by vivid tones, making for a proper, unobtrusive harmony.

Today's light furniture finishes, too, have helped establish this trend, the dark walls providing a handsome setting for the light, pretty but mightily efficient furniture of today. Off-white or light beige curtains of sheer fabric look handsome with the dark tones. Smart black and white draperies go beautifully with a room done in deep red. In some rooms we saw, one or two walls had been done in a lighter hue than the rest.

In a dining room this could be the window wall and the space against which a sideboard or serving table is placed. In a living room it might be the fireplace wall, and maybe the wall opposite that, if a sofa is used there.

A light color on the wall trim helps to achieve a good balance, off-white being a nice choice in most instances. And in several rooms we noted that the surfaces of built-in bookshelves, storage cabinets and the like had been done in light hues, in some instances in a very light tone of the deep wall color.

35 lbs. LOST IN FIVE WEEKS

"Renel is the most wonderful, easy way to reduce anyone could use," writes Miss Celenia Grub, Richwood, Ohio. "Before taking Renel I was so short of breath and could not sleep. I felt so full and stuffy all the time. I weighed 165 lbs. Using Renel I lost 35 lbs. in 5 weeks and I didn't experience one hungry minute. I sleep good, no gas or bloating anymore and I feel fine. I take a size 14 dress since I have lost this extra weight."

Your druggist has liquid RENEL. Ask for free booklet. RENEL has been proven and recommended by thousands of your Ohio neighbors. Satisfaction guaranteed with the first bottle or send to manufacturer for refund. You'll not be hungry reducing with RENEL. Costs only $1.40.

Fewer Persons Watch Tourney Than In 1953

There was a total attendance of 8,616 persons at this year's Pickaway County Basketball Tournament games, according to a report released by tournament officials. While the attendance was considered excellent, it was a little more than 300 under the total attendance at the 1953 tournament. The games last year drew 8,961.

Most of the drop occurred in student attendance figures. Adults numbered 5,457 compared to 5,482 at last year's games; student attendance was 3,159, compared to 3,479 at the 1953 games.

The total receipts of the tournament was $4,605.66, while total expenditures were $1,167.53, leaving a profit of $3,438.13.

Out of total receipts, each of the 11 county schools received $286.51, making a total of $3,151.61. The remaining $286.52 went into the county activities fund which will be used to help defray the costs of the county track meet, and to start next year's basketball tournament activities.

Principal expenses of the tournament were: Coliseum rental, $300; salaries for referees, $360; salaries for police auxiliary, $75; cost of trophies, $82.89; cost of basketballs, $39.70; payment to executive secretary and to tournament manager, $55 each; parking attendants, $90; public address system, $30; scorer, $25; Ohio High School Athletic Association, $35. The balance went for miscellaneous materials such as tickets, score books and stamps.

Ashville Beaten By Hartford By Score 54 To 46

The Ashville Broncos, winners of the 1954 Pickaway County basketball tournament, were eliminated from the Central District Class B struggle in the quarter-finals held at Otterbein College Saturday night. They were downed by Hartford, of Licking County, 54 to 46. For the first three periods of the game, it was a reminder of the Ashville-Pickaway championship game in the county tourney, with the lead changing hands 10 times and tying on five other occasions in the first quarter. At the intermission, Ashville led 25 to 23.

The lead changed twice in the early part of the third quarter before Hartford's Dick Callen broke a 31-31 tie with a fielder to put Hartford in the lead for the rest of the game.

Ashville threatened again in the fourth quarter by pulling up to within one point of Hartford's 45, but was not quite able to overtake the opponent. From that time Hartford went on to the comfortable lead with which the game ended.

Short Educational Sound Films Gain Popularity In District

Library Offers New Selections During March

Projector Scarcity Remains Handicap On Idea Here

An outstanding and relatively new aid to public education continued to gain popularity in Pickaway County last month despite a scarcity of necessary equipment.

Educational films, with sound, reached another new high in circulation at Pickaway County Library, although no public projectors are available and the few privately-owned have a long "waiting list". Library attaches said requests for the films could have exceeded the immediate supply if enough projectors were available on a loan or rental basis.

Leaders in the educational field many years ago recognized the tremendous merits of the so-called "class room movies." Actually, the films are also in heavy demand among social groups and church and service organizations. In more recent times they have likewise been featured on civic body programs in almost every community.

Meanwhile, the difficulty in obtaining projectors when needed has become a serious handicap, and this shortage has been emphasized in Pickaway County since the library began offering the films here. In spite of this disadvantage, the 13 films available here in February had a total circulation of 58, being shown altogether 78 times to an audience estimated at nearly 6,500 persons.

THREE OF THE most popular films on the February list were the "Nation's Capital," a March-of-Time production; "Wonders of the Sea," and "Daniel Boone." Community leaders have already pointed out a timely film included in the current list for March. Entitled, "Drunk Driving," is rated especially timely here in view of efforts to organize a Pickaway County Highway Safety Committee.

Organization of the committee, under temporary leadership of Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer, will tie in the local traffic safety efforts with a new and vigorous nationwide campaign.

All films offered for rental by the library are 16 mm. sound films. They can be rented at the rate of 25 cents for a 24-hour period.

The library serving the district, in Circleville at the corner of Main and Pickaway streets, is open from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. every day except Sunday.

Films available during March, listing the titles, their showing time and a brief description, are:

Booker T. Washington (17 minutes): Negro educator who struggled to establish a place for the Negro in American society—to free his people from ignorance, poverty and fear.

A Concert Album (20 minutes): A complete concert by outstanding American artists such as Constance Keene, Charles Kullman, Nadine Conner and The Men of Song.

Drunk Driving (20 minutes): Tragic results of drunken driving are dramatized in an emotion picked sequence in which three people are killed and one injured. Useful for safety or temperance.

Natives of Guatemala (12 minutes): Purpose of this picture is to promote understanding and appreciation of our Latin-American neighbors by paralleling similarities and showing differences in beliefs and ways of living of the North and South Americans.

New York Parade (10 minutes):

A scenic tour through the great metropolis, depicting very well the relationships of individuals in this great city.

Rise and Fall of Nazi Germany (17 minutes): Background material for understanding the problems of peace in Europe today.

The Seeing Eye (10 minutes): Shows work done at Morristown, N. Y. where German shepherd dogs are selected and carefully trained to lead the blind.

Sports Immortals (11 minutes): Thumbnail biographies of famous sports figures: Red Grange, Knute Rockne, etc.

Wonders in Wood (10 minutes): The carving of figures from wood by men of infinite patience, skill and artistry brings a most interesting craft to the screen.

You and Your Parents (14 minutes): Process of growing away from the family is described as natural and normal; also shows how it can lead to difficulties if both parents and children do not take the time to understand each other's problems.

Your Government—The Congress (9 minutes): Designed to acquaint the public with the structures and functions of the U. S. Congress, the film describes the two houses, the offices of the senator and representative and the passing of a bill from its initial stage to the President.

Your Government—The Presidency (9 minutes): Tracing the emerging role of President through past Presidents and enumerating on the qualifications and duties of this man in office, this film is presented to the people to whom the President is answerable.

Your Government—The Supreme Court (9 minutes): The judicial branch of the government occupies the newest and most imposing public building in Washington. Shows the first duties of only acting as it arbitrated disputes between States to its present functions.

Thinking Machine Said Perfected

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. (AP)—A Mount Holyoke College philosophy professor today displayed his "thinking machine," which he says "is to logic what an adding machine is to arithmetic."

Prof. Roger W. Holmes built the machine for about $120 "plus labor."

He says it can solve practically any problem in a book on fundamental symbolic logic.

The machine, about the size of an old-fashioned table model radio, has a complex system of electrical relays which flashes lights on a control board.

If a proposition is valid a green light will flash. If it is invalid, a red light shows.

Heroic Airline Hostess Is Wed

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—A plucky young McKeesport, Pa., airline hostess who was credited with saving 26 passengers from a flaming airliner last September, was on her way to the East Coast today on her honeymoon.

Miss Patricia Grivna, 22, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Grivna of McKeesport, was wed Saturday night in a formal ceremony to Raymond M. Cheseldine Jr., of nearby Fullerton.

She aided in saving 26 persons, including three babies, from a Northwest Airlines plane which crashed at McChord Air Force Base a short time after taking off from Seattle.

Skiing Kills 9

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—A death toll of nine was reported today from weekend skiing accidents and avalanches in the Austrian Alps. Three other persons were reported missing.

The Marsmen Haven't Come Yet But Writer Gets Jitters Anyway

By ED CREAGH (For Hal Boyle)

WASHINGTON (AP)—Put me down as a coward if you like, but I'm not sure the brave new world of tomorrow is the world for me.

Like millions of other people I can't resist those science stories—some fiction, some "scientific" speculation—about what's ahead for mankind. You know—rocket ships blasting off to Mars, strange creatures from outer space dropping in among us.

Now this makes fine "escape" reading, as some of my higher-browed friends tell me with a sniff when they catch me with a paper—back hidden behind a "serious" book. Trouble is, I have an uneasy hunch that the authors of these interplanetary thrillers aren't kidding.

They were, if you remember, the boys who were writing confidently of the atom bomb in the days when many a "real" scientist was scoffing at the very idea. They have, in fact, a disturbing record of being right in their forecasts.

All I know is that if their picture of our future is anywhere near accurate, this 20th century world of the hydrogen bomb, the Communist menace and the Puerto Rican terrorist with the blazing gun is going to seem a warm and cozy place by comparison.

If you care for an example: Space ship lands on Mars; crew finds the place occupied by pigs. In less time than it takes to say "pseudo-scientific," our brave human adventurers find themselves tossed into pens and the pigs are about to have people chops for supper.

This is mild, whimsical stuff compared with much science fiction. More often, the creatures from outer space are tough, scaly creatures armed with devastating ray-guns or horrible, shapeless blobs that assume any form.

Worse still, in this nightmare world of tomorrow, odd changes occur in those stay-at-home earthlings who don't go rocketing through space. They learn to read minds. They form themselves into unholy several-people-in-one combinations, with a mongoloid idiot for a brain, and for arms and legs, two girls who go whisking magically through space wearing nothing but impish expressions.

Maybe I'm borrowing trouble. Maybe none of us will live to see this nerve-shattering tomorrow. But it's just as well to be prepared. The time may be fast approaching when we will need (a) a congressional committee on unwelcome activities, to investigate subversion on a scale beyond the fondest dreams of the Kremlin, and (b) an amendment to the McCarran act barring a furred, feathered or cloven-hoofed immigrants from outer space until their intentions have been proved honest.

You think I'm kidding? Look over your shoulder. Here! At the window! That green crawling thing with the phosphorescent scales! Oops, too late. It's already eaten grandma.

Busted Tennis Balls Valuable

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It wasn't easy, but Milt Forrest has at last found a use for his collection of 500 cracked table tennis balls, which he calls the world's largest.

Forrest is a graduate student at the University of Southern California and an official of the Southern California Table Tennis Assn.

He began saving busted balls in the hope of finding a way to repair them cheaply. When he had no luck, he went to the chemistry department, which told him there was no way to fix them for less than the price of new ones.

Then he heard the chemists were on the lookout for tennis balls, which are larger.

He hastened to give them his prized store, because they were perfect for what the chemists wanted—balls to make models showing the structure of atoms.

Yank Freighter Freed By Turks

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—The American freighter Volunteer State, held three days by Turkish authorities investigating a hit-run collision at sea, has been allowed to continue her voyage to Genoa.

Maritime officials said the 7,210-ton vessel was in the area where the small Turkish ship Yayla was struck last Tuesday by a large ship which did not stop. The Yayla sank and four Turkish seamen drowned.

The crew of the Volunteer State denied knowledge of any crashup.

Society Expert Dies

CLEVELAND (AP)—Edith Charlesworth, society editor of the old Cleveland Leader and later a compiler of a Cleveland society blue book, was buried today.

Armco Aide Dies

CINCINNATI (AP)—Funeral services will be held Wednesday for Ralph E. Kah, 50, traffic manager of Armco International Corp. Kah, supreme king of the Masonic order of White Shrine of the United States and Canada, died yesterday of cancer in Middletown Hospital.

4-Time Gold Star Mother Is Killed

CLAY, W. Va. (AP)—A Clay County mother who drew the nation's sympathy when the fourth of her five soldier-sons died in service was killed last night in a highway accident near her home.

State police said Mrs. Florida A. Jones, 63, of nearby Bickmore, a widow, was struck by an automobile about 10 p.m. as she walked along State Route 16. She was dead when the ambulance reached Laird Memorial Hospital in Montgomery.

Only one of her five sons survives. He is Air Force Sgt. William L. Jones, who reportedly now is on recruiting duty in the Charleston area.
